

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLSOURE

The invention relates to a women's garment comprising a front piece and a back piece, which together form a body-enclosing casing, in which a neck opening (3), two armholes (4) and at least one lower opening (5) are included, the front piece being composed of a top piece (10) and a bottom piece (11), which are separated via a transverse, slit-like access opening, which is delimited by an upper edge of the bottom piece (11), and a lower edge (12) of the top piece (10), the bottom piece (11) being formed with a tab (14), which is fastened on the inside of the top piece (10) and separates two recesses (19) for the housing of breasts. According to the invention the tab has a tapered basic shape and is delimited by arched limiting edges (17), which transform into likewise arched limiting edges (18), which form the upper edge of the bottom piece (11) and which generally have an arc radius that is smaller than the arc radius of the tab limiting edges (17).